Establishing a Media and Innovation Lab in the ACC for Enhanced Operations

1. Introduction

In the dynamic landscape of combating corruption, effective communication is pivotal for the Anti-Corruption Commission (ACC) to convey its mission, initiatives, and accomplishments to the public. To optimize media engagement, this proposal suggests the establishment of a dedicated Media and Innovation Lab within the ACC. This centralized hub will serve as a focal point for disseminating information about the ACC and its related activities, aiming to enhance communication effectiveness, streamline information flow, and reinforce the ACC's presence.

2. Rationale

Establishing a Media and Innovation Lab is imperative to tackle the evolving challenges in communication and media engagement, especially in a landscape where audience attention spans are limited. Various Anti-Corruption Agencies globally, including the Malaysian Anti-Corruption Commission, have recognized this need and established dedicated spaces for media and communication purposes. Acknowledging the significance of a centralized hub, the ACC aims to ensure consistent and coherent messaging, reducing the potential for misinformation. By providing a designated area for media operations, the ACC can take a proactive approach to shape its narrative and emphasize its endeavors in the ongoing fight against corruption.

However, sustaining media engagement requires a thoughtful approach. Various media outlets in the country generally prioritize sensational stories over educational or prevention programs, potentially overshadowing the ACC's core objectives. To counter this tendency, the Media and Innovation Lab will focus on creating riveting content that not only captures attention but also educates the public on the detrimental effects of corruption and the importance of prevention programs. Furthermore, considering the recent understanding between the ACC and the OAG in sharing information with the media, the Media and Innovation Lab will facilitate seamless coordination between the ACC and OAG to ensure accurate and timely dissemination of information, presenting a united front in the fight against corruption.

Moreover, in the current age of social media dominance, it is imperative for the ACC to adapt its communication strategy to align with current trends. All the media firms are increasingly migrating to social media platforms, making it crucial for the ACC to build internal capacity to generate engaging content tailored for these platforms. Such curated content will not only enhance the ACC’s ability to reach a wider audience but will also provide a more direct and interactive means of communication. Moreover, a study revealed that in Bhutan, social media has achieved remarkable penetration, with approximately 90% of the population actively engaged on at least one platform, facilitated by widespread smartphone ownership and internet accessibility. Multiplatform membership is prevalent, with Facebook, WeChat, and YouTube being the top choices. The average daily usage is 163 minutes, with younger generations, educated individuals, and employed persons exhibiting the most intensive usage (Social Media Landscape in Bhutan, 2021). Therefore, the establishment of a Media and Innovation Lab within the ACC is a strategic move to optimize and enhance media engagement.

3. Objectives

1. Improved Information Dissemination: Create a designated space equipped with relevant media tools to facilitate efficient communication of ACC-related information to both internal and external stakeholders.
2. Enhanced Public Relations: Establish a positive public image for the ACC by leveraging the Media and Innovation Lab to showcase its achievements, activities, and contributions.
3. Increased Visibility: Utilize various media formats (print, digital, audiovisual) to expand the ACC's reach and engage with a broader audience.

4. Scope of the Media and Innovation Lab

The proposed Media and Innovation Lab aims to be a comprehensive and dynamic center for optimizing media operations and strengthening communication strategies. The Media and Innovation Lab will encompass a range of activities and initiatives to ensure effective dissemination of information and enhance public engagement. The following scope outlines the key functions of the Media and Innovation Lab:

1. Information Hub

- Develop and maintain a centralized repository of ACC-related information, including press releases, reports, and multimedia content.
- Ensure timely updates and accuracy of information to minimize the risk of misinformation.

2. Content Creation and Management

- Develop riveting and informative content that aligns with the ACC's mission and objectives in collaboration with the internal Departments/Divisions/Services/ROs and external relevant stakeholders.
- Tailor content for various media formats, including print, digital, audiovisual, and social media platforms.

3. Social Media Engagement

- Develop engaging content specifically tailored for social media platforms.
- Regularly update and monitor ACC's social media accounts to stay abreast of trends and engage with the audience.
- Implement strategies to amplify the reach of ACC content on social media through targeted campaigns and collaborations.

Invitation to the OECD event "Fostering integrity policies and strengthening anti-corruption frameworks in Asia-Pacific" and the 2024 OECD Integrity Week & Global Anti-Corruption and Integrity Forum

Dear Madam Chair,

We are pleased to invite you to participate as a speaker (or to nominate a representative from your agency) to the OECD event "Fostering integrity policies and strengthening anti-corruption frameworks in Asia-Pacific" on 25 March, taking place during the 2024 OECD Integrity Week & Global Anti-Corruption & Integrity Forum in the same week.

This event will bring government anti-corruption experts and policy makers, law enforcement officials, representatives from the private sector, and international development partners together to discuss emerging trends in the fight against corruption in Asia-Pacific. It will feature developments across different workstreams related to public integrity, anti-corruption law enforcement, and business integrity. A draft agenda is attached.

We would be delighted to welcome you to provide opening remarks from 9:30-9:45, and participate in the panel "Managing conflicts of interest and asset disclosures for public integrity" from 15:00-16:00 CET. Your participation would provide an excellent opportunity to highlight your commitment to strengthening integrity and fighting corruption. It would also be an opportunity to celebrate Bhutan's leadership in this area, as exemplified by your country's hosting of the OECD-ADB Anti-Corruption Initiative for Asia-Pacific later this year.

Further, we would like to invite you to attend the 2024 OECD Global Anti-Corruption & Integrity Forum (GACIF) on 26-27 March. The Forum features leaders from around the world and provides an opportunity to share new thinking, insights and evidence on these issues. The theme of the 2024 Forum is "Designing our future with integrity" and will focus on the importance of upholding integrity against new corruption risks arising from foreign interference, artificial intelligence and climate change, along with other challenges. The 2024 Forum will also mark the 25th anniversary of the entry into force of the OECD Convention on Combating Bribery of Foreign Public Officials in International Business Transactions (the Anti-Bribery Convention). Please see the Forum website for more information.

We encourage you to self-register via the website at your earliest convenience for access to both the Asia-Pacific Anti-Corruption (APAC) event and GACIF, as well as other events taking place in the OECD Integrity Week (refer to the agenda on the Forum website for more details).

Draft Agenda

Fostering integrity policies and strengthening anti-corruption frameworks in Asia-Pacific

25 March 2024

OECD Conference Centre, (2 rue André Pascal, 75016, Paris, France)

This in-person event is by invitation only. All sessions will take place in English only.

This event will bring government anti-corruption experts and policy makers, law enforcement officials, representatives from the private sector, and international development partners together to discuss emerging trends in the fight against corruption in Asia and the Pacific. It will feature developments across different workstreams related to public integrity, anti-corruption law enforcement, and business integrity.

By fostering a network of leaders committed to promoting anti-corruption measures, this event aims to have a practical, region-wide impact that will lead a collective drive for integrity in governance across Asia-Pacific.

9:00-9:30	Welcome coffee
9:30-9:45	Opening remarks
09:45 –10:45	Session 1: Emerging trends for fighting corruption and promoting integrity in Asia-Pacific This session will bring together regional representatives to discuss latest trends in anti-corruption and integrity, identify common challenges and promote good practices. These will cover the key building blocks for reducing corruption risks and strengthening public trust, providing updates on recent progress on legislative frameworks and institution-building, effective preventive work, investigations and enforcement, as well as robust mechanisms for transparency, oversight and accountability.
10:45-11:45	Session 2: Increasing the resilience to corruption in Asia and the Pacific: challenges and lessons learned The session will highlight efforts from governments in the region to align their country's legal and policy frameworks with OECD anti-corruption standards, including the Convention on Combating Bribery of Foreign Public Officials in International Business Transactions, the 2021 Anti-Bribery Recommendation as well as the 2017 Recommendation on Public Integrity. This session will tackle challenges and opportunities to improve legal and policy frameworks to combat corruption, mitigate risks and improve integrity. It will build on the main conclusions of OECD programmes in the region and the role of peer reviews in the process.
11:45-12:00	Coffee break
12:00-13:00	Session 3: Strengthening national and multilateral efforts to address corruption risks in emergency responses in Asia-Pacific This session will discuss key recommendations and best practices for promoting accountability, control, oversight, and management of economic stimulus packages and recovery funds; and detecting and investigating corruption and fraud during emergency situations in Asia-Pacific.
13:00-14:00	Lunch break

14:00-15:00	Session 4 – Promoting business integrity in Asia and the Pacific Business integrity is essential to prevent corruption and other adverse economic risks. It reduces the cost of doing business and contributes to continued sustainable growth. The OECD builds capacities of both government and private sector stakeholders in the region to promote business integrity, including through support for collective action initiatives against corruption. This session aims to take stock of these initiatives and discuss what more can be done to instil a culture of business integrity in the region.
15:00-16:00	Session 5: Managing conflicts of interest and asset disclosures for public integrity Governments are increasingly expected to ensure that public officials do not allow their private interests and affiliations to compromise official decision-making and the performance of their duties with integrity. While a conflict-of-interest is not ipso facto corruption, there is increasing recognition that conflicts between the private interests and public duties of public officials, if inadequately managed, can result in corruption. At the same time, even perceived or potential conflicts of interest may damage the credibility of institutions and confidence in public decision-making. This panel will explore challenges identified in conflict-of-interest legal and policy frameworks and present regional approaches for preventing and managing conflicts of interest, as well as for making use of data from asset and interest declarations.
16:00-16:15	Coffee break
16:15-17:15	Session 6: Dialogue with international development partners on integrity and anti-corruption in Asia-Pacific Corruption is a complex, multi-dimensional, and cross-sectoral phenomenon that impedes economic sustainability and development, threatens social security and fairness, undermines the rule of law, and erodes public trust. Its consequences are far-reaching, affecting governments, citizens and businesses. Vigorous international cooperation is key in overcoming this global challenge. Through a dialogue with regional partners, this session will highlight the impact of ongoing initiatives and identify ways to further intensify collective efforts in the fight against corruption by strengthening existing cooperation and developing new areas of international collaboration.
17:15-17:30	Closing remarks
